This is a cadastral map of a residential area in Wrocław, Poland. The map displays a network of streets and numerous land parcels, each identified by a unique number (e.g., 11-184/57, 11-199/16). Several parcels are highlighted in yellow, indicating specific areas of interest or ownership. Handwritten blue annotations provide additional context:

- Top Center: "Wrocław" (City name)
- Left Side: "DROGA POWIATOWA" (County Road) written vertically.
- Yellow Highlighted Areas:
  - A long strip along the top right, labeled "185".
  - A horizontal strip across the middle, labeled "58".
  - An area on the right side, labeled "100".
  - A small parcel at the bottom right, labeled "0.050".
- Other Annotations: Various smaller numbers and letters are scattered throughout the map, often near specific parcels or roads.

The map uses standard cadastral symbols to represent buildings, roads, and other geographical features. The overall layout shows a dense urban environment with a mix of large and small plots.
